Abstract

This series covers core areas of language study and are one-stop resources for students. The book provides comprehensive support for readers tackling their first independent research projects. It offers advice about research methods with reference to an extensive range of English Language topics including variation in accents, news discourse, forensic linguistics, child language development and many more. It guides readers step-by-step through the research process, from initial ideas to the submission of the dissertation. It includes an extensive range of activities and points for discussion. It illustrates each topic with examples from actual student projects and published studies. It includes key readings from leading English language researchers, including Ronald Carter; Jennifer Coates; Ruqaiya Hasan; Roz Ivanic; Ben Rampton; John Sinclair.

A general resource for academic writers. It aims to provide you with examples of some of the phraseological “nuts and bolts” of writing organised according to the main sections of a research paper or dissertation (a). The resource should be particularly useful for writers who need to report their research work. The phrases, and the headings under which they are listed, can be used simply to assist you in thinking about the content and organisation of your own writing, or the phrases can be incorporated into your writing where this is appropriate. Ideal for students of any discipline, from engineers or social scientists to business students or lawyers, it covers all the key vocabulary they will come across in academic textbooks, articles, lectures and 5,47 МБ.
